Local markets, global impact

IP rights holders should consider the many benefits of protecting their IP in Australia, New Zealand and the Pacific Islands.

The Australian and New Zealand markets are large users of global brands and are attractive places to do business, with a combined population of over 31 million and a strong and stable GDP.

The Pacific Islands have recognised strategic importance, and are receiving increased overseas investment into the region. Rights holders can, therefore, also benefit from IP protection in the Pacific Islands.

Doing business in Australia and New Zealand

- Australia and New Zealand rank 24th and 27th respectively in the Global Innovation Index 2023.
- As early adopters of products and technology, Australia and New Zealand are indicator markets for innovative products and services.
- First world research capabilities and an innovative culture have seen the region develop as a stronghold for R&D in a range of industries such as agritech and greentech.
- The laws and courts in these countries are supportive of owners' rights making it an attractive litigation indicator for multi-country IP rights enforcements.
- Often considered a "Gateway to Asia", Australia and New Zealand are in close proximity to, and have established Free Trade Agreements with many Asian countries.
- Australia and New Zealand each have a low rate of corruption so are easy places to do business.

Your IP specialists in ANZ

Our passion is innovation and turning your ideas into assets through intelligent action.

We are proud to represent many innovative and iconic companies in Australia and New Zealand, as well as 75% of the Interbrand top 100 brands and 29% of the global Fortune 500.

Our full-service offering spans strategy and protection, through to commercialisation, enforcement and renewal, and is backed by best-in-class technology and data.

AJ Park's history spans over 130 years, and we operate as part of the IPH Limited group, which includes a range of professional service firms operating under several brands throughout the Asia-Pacific region and Canada.

Recognised internationally as a gold-standard provider of IP services and advice, our people constantly aim to help clients extract the best possible value from their innovations, brands, inventions and businesses. We're proud to have 13 AJ Park experts hold a PhD in their respective fields across our Litigation, Engineering and IT, and Chembio teams. AJ Park also employs 1 in 5 registered Patent Attorneys located in New Zealand.

The benefits of engaging AJ Park to manage your IP needs throughout Australia, New Zealand and the Pacific Islands include:

Experts with depth and breadth

Our scale enables us to cover nearly any technical subject matter area. One or more of our team will have almost certainly encountered an issue previously. We support each other to quickly find a solution for clients, based on our combined experience. We are intimately familiar and experienced with IP systems not only in Australia and New Zealand, but also in major overseas markets including the United States, Europe, and Asia.

Designed to be responsive

We're ready to make things happen. The processes, systems and way we work at AJ Park have all been designed to enable us to be highly responsive to your needs. Through exceptional communication and information sharing, we'll be able to work at the pace of your business.

The details matter

We take the time to understand your business needs and strategy, pairing it with our deep understanding of the technical nuances of a diverse range of technologies and the complexities of IP law in different jurisdictions.

Clarity you can act on

We believe that our work is more valuable when we distill complexity down to simple and structured outcomes. We make it easy for you to take action. You can then make the commercial decisions necessary to achieve your business objectives.
